Construction of $1.2-million Court Addition Underway

by Dave Atkins

On June 11, 1990, ground-breaking ceremonies took place for the addition of new space to the existing court building located at Wayne and Goddard roads in Romulus.

The 34th District Court services the cities of Romulus and Belleville and the townships of Huron, Sumpter, and Van Buren, and the work load has been so great of late that additional room is needed.

Romulus City Treasurer Jim Napiorkowski spearheaded the arrangements for the funding of the building project, along with Andy Solak of Manufacturers National Bank in Romulus. Both Solak and Treasurer Napiorkowski are members of the Building Authority, along with Wendy Dixon of Security Bank and Trust, Tony Kopas of Romulus Hardware, and attorney Steve Trahey.

Money for the addition was obtained through a bond issue which will be paid back from the revenues obtained by the court from traffic tickets, fines, etc. The total cost of the addition will be in the vicinity of $1.2 million. The architectural design was handled by Coquillard, Dundon, Peterson, and Argenta of Southfield; the addition will be built by the J.S. Vig Construction Company.

On hand for the ground-breaking ceremony were Romulus Mayor Beverly McAnally, Chief Judge Henry Zaborowski, Judge William Szlinis, Magistrate Mark Maironis, and ex-Judge James Stone (who is presently retired), along with members of the Building Authority, Nancy Schuette, who oversees Court operations, Van Buren Supervisor Dave Jacokes, and Mayor Silvanis of the City of Belleville.

The building will house two new courtrooms, as well as additional space for holding prisoners who are awaiting trial. According to Nancy Schuette, the cells will not be used as an overnight drop-off spot for prisoners; prisoners will only be brought to the new facility when they are to be tried. The holding unit will be monitored by television cameras, which will relieve the need for the presence of so many police officers in the building.

The reason for the construction of the two new courtrooms is that there will be a new judge in the 34th District in November, giving us three full-time judges, and a fourth is expected to be added in the near future. Presently, the second new courtroom will be used by the new Probation Department, and the clerical area will be expanded, also. At this time, there are 26 employees in the existing court building, including the judges and the magistrate.

There will also be an additional 52 parking spaces to accommodate the new expansion.

The total area of development will be approximately 11,000 square feet of desperately needed space. Construction of the addition is expected to be completed by January 1, 1991. □

Major Surgery for Ellis Pennington

by Dave Atkins

Councilman Ellis Pennington will be entering the University of Michigan Hospital for major surgery very soon. Further details about his illness are not yet known, other than that the surgery is expected to last from six to eight hours.

Pennington said that he will be laid up for a few weeks, but will return to his Council seat as soon as the doctors say that he is able. Although Pennington considered retiring from the Council when he first discovered that he was sick, he changed his mind after consulting with his doctors. He also plans to run for office again, providing that his surgery is successful. We are sure that it will be.

Pennington, who recently retired from Kelsey-Hayes after 28 years of employment there, has been involved in local politics for many years. He served as a road commissioner and a township trustee back in the days before Romulus became a city, and was a member of the City Council during the first three years of that body's existence. After a short break, Pennington was again elected to the Council in 1985, and is currently serving his third consecutive term. He has been a major factor in the successful completion of many of the City's projects.

Everyone who knows Mr. Pennington will surely wish him all the best and a speedy recovery.

Anyone who would like to mail him a card may do so by sending it c/o The Romulus News (11114 Sterling, Romulus, MI 48174), and we will see that his wife takes them to the hospital for him during his stay there. □

Watch for Panhandlers

by Dave Atkins

In recent weeks, there has been a black male going around town (sometimes with a gas can) asking people for money for gas. He tells people that he ran out of gas on the freeway, and that he needs money to get more gas so that he can get his car off the road before the police impound it.

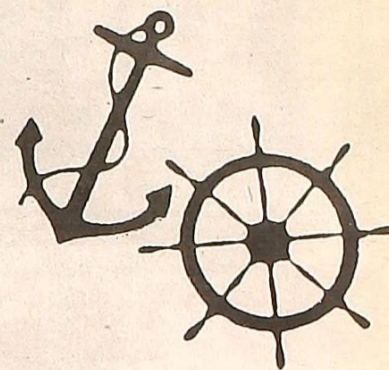

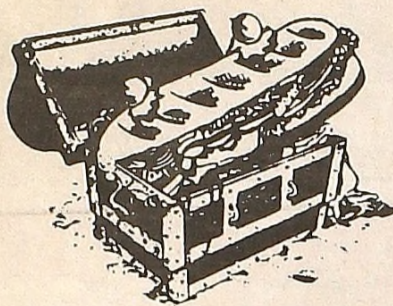

The places most often worked by this man are in our downtown area, near the Kozy Korner restaurant and the car wash by the Landing Strip.

So far, the man has done nothing

Athlete's Foot: Cure and Prevention

by Dr. Jeffrey A. August, Foot Specialist and Surgeon

What Athlete's Foot Actually Is

Athlete's foot (tinea pedis) is a fungal infection of the feet that can afflict anyone, not just athletes. Fungi are abundant in our world — in air, water, and soil, and on our bodies. In fact, anyone can carry an athlete's foot fungus without actually having the disease itself. Warm air and perspiration inside poorly ventilated shoes cause the fungi to multiply and symptoms soon appear.

How To Recognize Athlete's Foot

It is important that athlete's foot be diagnosed and treated early. Left untreated, athlete's foot can progress through stages to a severe form with extreme symptoms, including intense inflammation.

The infection first produces symptoms such as painful, itchy, cracked or scaly skin, small blisters, and red, irritated skin patches between the toes, as well as burning and stinging sensations. One or all of these symptoms may occur. Then the infection can spread to the toenails, soles of the feet, and elsewhere. An unpleasant foot odor is also often associated with athlete's foot.

How To Relieve The Symptoms And Cure The Disease

For quick relief, use ointments, cream, and powder. Each formula stops foot discomfort and halts the growth of fungi. In fact, each contains the time-proven, active ingredients that kill the three major types of fungi that cause athlete's foot.

Desenex athlete's foot products have met the requirements of the American Podiatric Medical Association for safety and usefulness established by laboratory and clinical evaluation.

Desenex was the first antifungal product to be awarded the APMA Seal of Approval. This distinction is given to pharmaceutical products following a thorough review of research data and product quality.

This professional endorsement is awarded only after extensive testing. The results show Desenex effectively cures athlete's foot. In fact, the makers of Desenex are so confident in the performance of their product that they guarantee satisfaction. If you're not satisfied with Desenex, the company will refund the purchase price of the product.

Preventing Athlete's Foot

Since the damp, dark environment of most footwear encourages fungi to survive, it is important to be consistent with a daily hygiene routine that keeps your feet dry and clean.

- Bathe daily, drying feet completely, especially between toes.
- Wear cotton socks to absorb perspiration, and change them daily.
- Wear lightweight footwear made of cloth or leather, or with ventilating holes in the design, to allow your feet to breathe.

- To keep feet dry, apply antifungal Desenex — shake or spray powder lightly to feet, socks, and shoes.
- Use Desenex daily to help prevent reinfection and offensive foot odor.
- See a podiatric (foot) physician when you have questions or recurrent problems.

The combination of conscientious daily foot hygiene, the use of Desenex products, and the advice of your podiatric physician constitute a basic, sound foot-care program. □

Molly's Story

by Tom Shamanski

In the summer, I think about mosquitoes a lot. Last year, I was down a pint or two of blood, all because of those pesky varmints. Pondering, though, I realized there's two sides per story, and, as far as I knew, the mosquito had never been given a chance to present his side.

So, plunging into the woods one day, I went looking for a mosquito who would consent to an in-depth interview. Wearing only jockey shorts and galoshes (exposing as much flesh as possible, of course), it still took more than two hours before I succeeded. You see, folks, when they'd land on me, I'd politely ask if they would consent to an interview. Most didn't even answer — I smashed those. A few would talk, but nothing for the record, please — I smashed those, too.

Then, getting somewhat wheezy from lost blood, I finally found a mosquito who would open up and give his side of the story. We sat down — me on a fallen log, the mosquito on a high-backed, cushioned recliner. I pulled a notebook and pen from my galoshes, and we began talking.

Me: Well, Mr. Mosquito, first of all, I want to thank you for this opportunity.

Mr. Mosquito: That's okay, cupcake, but knock off the 'mister' business. I'm Msss. Molly Goodrop . . . but you can call me Molly.

Me: Okay, Molly. Now, what's the deal on why all you mosquitoes bite us all the time? A lot of people don't like it, you know.

MG: First, sweetroll, we're not really biting you; it's actually an injection and removal procedure. Secondly, it's only us ladies who do the actual work. The men are lazy bugs.

Me: Hmm, do you share your blood with the guys, then?

MG: C'mon, babycakes, would you share your bucks with D. Trump? Listen, the men have got it made. They hang out at fast-food joints all day, and gnaw on fries and burgers thrown out of cars. But they'll get theirs, honeybun, because every one of those fools has high cholesterol from that stuff. And their triglycerides? . . . Wheeee!

Me: It's a serious problem, then?

MG: Cookie, let me tell you. Last week, in our suburb alone, three men stroked out, and another four had heart attacks . . . one fatal. But, hey, you know what?

Me: What?

MG: They don't learn. Why, right this minute, those flying trashbuckets are at Burgers-By-The-King, slopping down more of that gunk. Then, later tonight, they'll no doubt buzz into Ralph's Bar and lap up spilled beer until their wings go limp, and Ralph has to call a cab for 'em. Sweetie pie, I'm telling you, they just don't learn.

Me: Gee, Molly, I don't know why, but it all rings kind of, you know, familiar. . . . Well, anyway, when you were talking about sucking blood, you called it an "injection and removal" procedure. Would you elaborate on that a bit?

MG: Sure, sweetlips, here's the deal. You humans have little pockets of excess blood, scattered about just under your skin.

Me: Little pockets of blood? You're ribbing me, right?

MG: Hey, sugar, if you don't believe me, there's an excellent paper recently published in the Florida Everglade Journal of Hematology, called "Little Pockets Of Excess Blood Just Under The Skin — A New Bloody Frontier." It's coauthored by Drs. Klotter and W. B. Sells, and talks about these pockets, and how they may be hazardous to a human's health. So, get it and read it . . . Okay?

Me: Okay, okay. Now, again, what's "injection and removal"?

MG: Well, we zero in on these blood pockets, and, after positioning ourselves comfortably, we inject a healing compound directly into the pocket. Then, we remove the contaminated blood.

Me: Hmm, do your bodies somehow manufacture this compound?

MG: No, mostly we get it at Sears and carry it in backpacks until we spot a person who needs our help.

Me: So, actually, you're really doing us a large favor by using this procedure — is that how you see it?

MG: Absolutely.

Me: Well, doggone, who'd have believed it? That's really nice.

MG: By the way, can I ask you a question?

Me: Shoot.

MG: Where'd you get those far-out galoshes?

Me: Ha, Sears! . . . Where else?

With that, Molly and I began laughing and slapping our knees. Suddenly, I felt very close to her, and was sure she felt the same about me. Our laughter wound down.

MG: Listen, my friend, before you go, you've got a ripe little blood pocket on your arm. Want me to take care of it?

Me: You don't mind?

MG: Naw, it'll only take a sec.

I hate to tell you this, folks, but when she landed and began the procedure, my mind somehow wandered to an old girl friend who had left me for an anemic raisin salesman, and, instinctively, I smashed Molly! My Lord, I felt crushed! I tried getting into her backpack for some compound, but my hands were shaking like frightened Jello, and

Three RHS Students Will Attend Boys' State Program

by John Domas, Romulus High School Counselor

Three outstanding Romulus High School students have been selected to attend the 53rd annual American Legion Boys' State Program. The program is to be held on the campus of Michigan State University in East Lansing from June 14 to June 20.

Participating will be 1,000 boys representing the best of Michigan youth.

This year's local winners each received a $185 scholarship. They are: Dennis W. Tessin, son of William Tessin and Sharon McLaughlin (sponsored by the Romulus Rotary Club); Andrew S. French, son of Augustus and Annette French (sponsored by the Kiwanis Club); and James A. Christie, son of Rick Allen Christie and Amelia Deichert (sponsored by the Progressive Club of Romulus).

All are completing the eleventh grade at Romulus High School. Thus, they will be returning as seniors to share their Boys' State experience with their classmates next year.

The Boys' State Program duplicates the very process by which the government in Michigan and in Washington, D.C., operates. Each young man attending will learn from first-hand experience how to work within a political party, run for office, achieve legislative goals, evaluate social questions, and work for the common good. Aside from this practical learning experience, each boy learns the priceless lesson of team participation while maintaining his own individuality.

The long-term experience, together with the friendships developed, are not soon forgotten, but stay with the boys for the rest of their lives.

The ultimate learning experience derived from this program is that each boy leaves with a thorough and working knowledge of how our American system of government can affect change, implement ideas into law, and benefit society as a whole. There is no need for any of America's youth to feel alienated from our society, because there is a need to involve them in the continuing success of America, sponsors say.

Whether the boys attending become directly involved in the actual political process in later life or not, each one of them will join the American scene knowing that anything for the common good is achievable in our system. Perhaps, more importantly, they will each know how to achieve that common good through a peaceful and orderly process.

I would like to thank the following people for their help, support, and assistance in making it possible to send so many well-qualified and deserving students to Boys' State: Mae Jackson, William Knight, and Al Wilkerson, Romulus High School counselors; Gerald Nault, Romulus Progressive Club and Romulus Kiwanis Club, and Michael Prybyla, Romulus Rotary Club; Bob Hall, Bill Bradford, Richard Kahle, Michael Kernohan, David Ferdon, Dennis Stoh, Richard Wizgird, and Linda Poirier, all Romulus High School teachers; and Bonnie Bossidis, Guidance Office secretary. □ instruction in all fundamentals of basketball and a Romulus Camp t-shirt. Guest speakers will include Eastern Michigan University Head Coach, Ben Braun, and former Romulus standout, Grant Long, who currently plays with the Miami Heat of the NBA.

Camp applications may be picked up from Fred Coleman, Athletic Director, in the Athletic Office at RHS. □

Youth Reading Programs

A fun-filled summer is planned for Romulus children at the Romulus Public Library. The various reading programs which will begin later this month offer something for everyone, and are free of charge.

"Batches of Books" is this year's Statewide theme for the Summer Reading Program, intended for children from preschool through grade school. An exciting array of weekly programs will include Bonfires and Bears with Margaret Schmidt, a Hive Full of Honeybees with beekeeper Kevin Main, and a Mad Hatter's Party featuring Ming the Magnificent. Also included will be crafts, puzzles, and prizes for everyone. The Summer Reading Program sessions will be held at the Library on Wednesday afternoons at 1 p.m. beginning June 20 and ending August 8 (except July 4); the final party will be held on August 15 at 1 p.m.

A matching Read-to-me Program, for children age two and older who have not yet learned to read, will also be held. In this program, a reader (older child or adult) reads and the child listens. A Read-to-me record is kept at the Library. Participants in this program are also invited to the Summer Reading Party on August 15 at 1 p.m.

Computer Pix is a program for students entering grades seven through 12. Students answer a questionnaire about reading preferences; then the data is fed into a computer and the students receive a list of books which may be used for recreational reading during the summer. (Students do not actually use the computer.)

There will also be Story-time sessions for children ages three to seven on Tuesdays at 7 p.m. (June 19, June 26, July 3, and July 10) and on Thursdays at 10:30 a.m. (June 21, June 28, July 5, and July 12).

For more information, or to register for a program, please call 942-7589. □

OTHER PROGRAMS

The Romulus Recreation Department has something for almost everyone this summer, including youth softball, jazzercise for adults, adult and youth golf lessons, and more. For more information about these and other activities, please call 942-6852. □

Recently, at the post office, he approached two young ladies who were here visiting from England, and his request for money was almost demanding. Needless to say, they were scared to death.

Our police department is aware of this man's presence in the area. If he approaches you, you should notify the police immediately, and be ready to sign a complaint — that is the only way to put a stop to this problem. □

Point of Law

Tickets Cost You Points

by Murray A. Duncan, Jr., Attorney

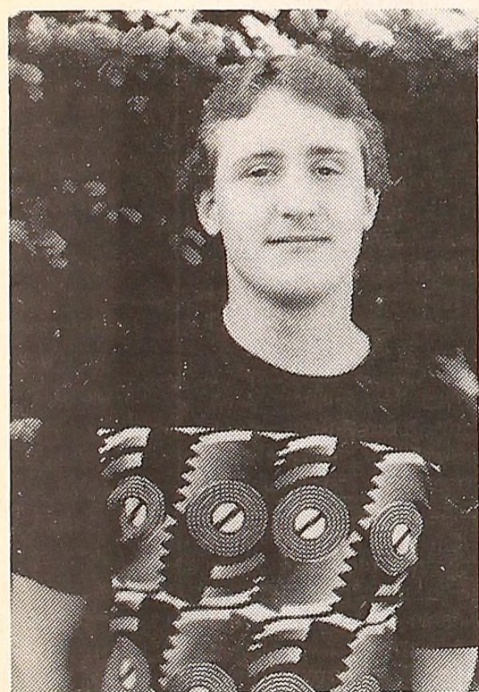

Traffic points stay on a driving record for two years. The highest single ticket is six points. Six-point tickets are given for offenses such as OUIL, leaving the scene of an accident, and reckless driving.

If a police officer gives more than one ticket to an individual at a traffic stop, that individual would only receive points for the most severe ticket handed out. For example, if an officer stops a person and issues tickets for speeding (two points), running a red light (three points), and reckless driving (six points), the person would only receive six points on his/her driving record.

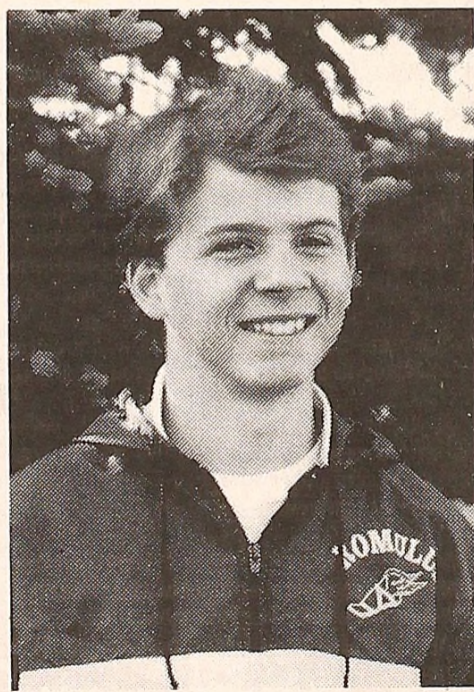

Points are issued after an individual admits responsibility or is found guilty of the offense. Thus, the mere fact that an officer writes a ticket does not result in points being issued. Points will issue once the individual pays the ticket or goes to court and pleads or is found guilty.

It is very important to attempt to avoid six-point tickets, either by careful driving or fighting the tickets in court. A conviction on a six-point ticket usually results in a substantial increase in insurance rates.

If you have a legal question that you would like answered, you may send your question to my office and I will attempt to address it in a future issue. Questions should be mailed to: Murray A. Duncan, Jr., 10000 South Wayne Road, Romulus, Michigan 48174. □

New Seat Belt Law Enacted

State Representative James A. Kosteva (D-Canton) announced last week that a bill he sponsored, which requires the use of seat belts for minors between the ages of four and 16, has been signed into law.

"This new law is necessary to ensure the continued safety of all children in Michigan," Kosteva said. "If youngsters learn good safety habits now, they will have a foundation for sound driving habits as adults."

Current restraint laws require minors under the age of four to be fastened into a special car seat or restrained by seat belts. Travelers in the front seat of an automobile, including the driver, are also required to use seat belts. Representative Kosteva's bill mandates that any child between the ages of four and 16 traveling in the back seat of an automobile also wear a seat belt.

Recent safety statistics have shown a reduction in the number of traffic fatalities involving small children, thereby proving the effectiveness of the child restraint restrictions.

"It has been proven that seat belt use saves lives," said Kosteva. "Expanded use of this lifesaving device will save more children from serious injury or death." □

DCA Hosts Exhibit

The art of sailing and the sale of art will team up this weekend when the Downriver Council for the Arts (of which the Romulus Arts Council is a member) hosts McGraw's Tug Boat of Varna, Ontario. The vessel will make its one and only U.S. stop in Wyandotte.

McGraw's Tug is a 47-foot commercial fishing vessel first launched in 1950. In addition to the usual nautical equipment, this boat features a gallery with a variety of marine art by Captain Andrew Durnford and three other Canadian artists. Durnford has also reserved space for three Downriver marine artists, making the event truly international. The Ontario artists are Andrew Durnford (Bayfield), Anne Marsh Evans and James Evans (Meaford), and Ted Radema (Ottawa). The American exhibit was curated by Patt Slack of River's Edge Gallery. Artists from the U.S. will be Leo V. Kuschel (Taylor), Paul LeMarre (Southgate), and Fran Hasson (Trenton). Art work will be for sale.

The goal of the show is to provide recognition for Canadian and marine artists of the highest quality who reside along Lake Huron and Georgian Bay, and also to foster relations between the two countries.

The tug arrives on the afternoon of Friday, June 15, at the Portside Inn in Wyandotte. A reception (at $10 per person) for sponsors and guests will be held from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Interested

King and Wilkerson Reelected to Four Year Terms

by Dave Atkins

Edward L. Wilkerson and Mary M. King have been reelected to the Romulus Community Schools Board of Education for four-year terms. The election was held June 11.

Matthew Raftary, our city assessor, was a write-in candidate in some of the precincts and received 11 votes. Another write-in candidate, James Dennett, received three votes.

Both King and Wilkerson have been on the School Board since 1982. Evidently, even through all the controversy, the general public must approve of the job that these two are doing.

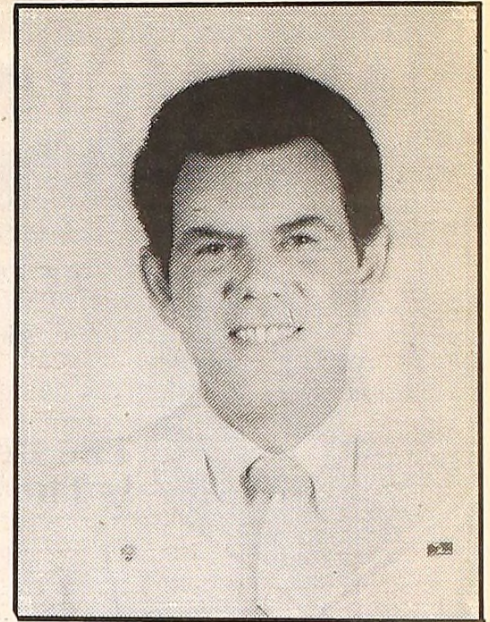

In an interview with Raftary, he said, "I spent about 10 minutes talking to people and I received 11 votes out of 447. That should tell you something." He continued, "There were some who asked me to run and I have had thoughts of running for the School Board, so I told them to feel free to write my name in as a candidate."

Raftary said that there would be no conflict of interest involved because he is not an elected official of the City; he is a department head.

I asked Raftary if he planned to run a full-scale campaign in the next election, and he replied, "I don't know. It's early to tell right now. I have thought about it in the past and it is quite possible, but I just don't know right now. I have had some people ask me to run, though."

Mary M. King

Edward L. Wilkerson

The next School Board election will be held in June of 1991, when the seat presently held by Howard Kesner will be the only one to be filled at the time. It is unknown at this time whether or not Kesner will attempt to retain that seat. □

High School May Not Always Prepare Students for College

by Lara L. Gutierrez

I graduated from Romulus High School with a 3.18 grade point average. I usually did my homework in the class before it was due. Now I am finishing my second year at Michigan State University. I have to study at least 12-15 hours a week to maintain a 2.5 GPA.

Something is wrong.

Before I offend anyone, let me make it clear that I am not blaming the Romulus School System or any of my former teachers for the difficulty I am experiencing now. I believe, as do the other former RHS students to whom I spoke, that the teachers are just as frustrated as we are.

College is a difficult transition from high school. Unfortunately, the transition is more difficult coming out of some high schools compared to others.

I experience the most difficulty with the learning process itself. In high school, I never learned how to really comprehend information, and comprehension makes all the difference in the world of college. Professors focus on the "how" and "why's" instead of just

"this is the question and this is the answer." On exams students are asked to apply what they have learned to problems they've never seen before.

Applications require that you memorize and understand information.

As a college freshman I did the worst in the classes I had to write papers for and the classes where the exams were essay.

In English, my professors kept telling me that my papers weren't focused or that I had a weak thesis or no thesis at all. My ideas were okay, but I wasn't able to put them into any kind of order.

On essay exams, professors are looking for clear, logical answers. One professor began his class by saying he would give a failing grade to any exams that were just "regurgitated facts." Compared to high school, the instructors are concerned with whether or not you really know the information, inside and out.

"Tests in general are different. They're harder, more detailed, and they don't just give you the information you need to know," said Derek Twitchell, former RHS student.

Derek graduated from high school with a 2.9 grade point average. He finished his second year at Central Michigan University with a 3.0 GPA. The only difference is that now he spends at least 15 hours a week studying compared to the four or five hours a week he spent in high school.

"A lot of the teachers were behind the times. They didn't know what is being asked of college students today," said Jeff Barks. "I came to college and was totally shocked."

Jeff graduated from Romulus High School with a 3.3 GPA. He graduates from Michigan State University this June. Currently his GPA is 2.4.

The study habits Jeff used in high school didn't prepare him for college. "I studied about a half hour a day, if that, in high school," said Jeff. "Now I have to study at least three or four hours a day."

Jeff also said that many of his courses in high school weren't challenging enough and that there were teachers who he believes "babied" their students too much.

"The teachers aren't bad. They do as good as they can with what they have to work with," said Renee Hardt.

Renee graduated from RHS with a 3.8 grade point average and has just finished her second year at the University of Michigan. Her GPA is currently 3.5. She said the students who don't care about their education hinder the education of the students who do care.

Whatever the problem may be, students, teachers, or demographics, solving the problem is, perhaps, what is most important.

I believe teachers should structure their courses around understanding more instead of memorization. Students need to be encouraged to think more instead of being "spoonfed" information. Whether this would be achieved through a different type of evaluation or instruction, I'm not sure. However, I am sure that this is something that is highly essential to students going on to college. I also believe that it would be helpful if teachers were required to take refresher courses every so often. Teachers would be up on their subjects and aware of what a university demands. Courses offered at different levels would create incentive for students and teachers as well. This way the students who needed to go slower could get more instruction and the ones who didn't could advance. □

I only crushed her more.

Weeks later, reflecting, I was glad I threw a memorial service for her. Afterwards, Molly's friends, relatives, and I did lunch. Somehow, I just knew Molly would have approved of the service and luncheon being held at Ralph's Bar. Later, I drove everyone home. □

Kosteva Will Seek Reelection

State Representative Jim Kosteva (D-Canton) has announced that he will seek his fourth term in the House representing the 37th District, which consists of Romulus, Van Buren Township, Belleville, Wayne, and a portion of Canton Township.

"Six years ago, I came to Lansing to represent the interests of my neighbors in the 37th District," Representative Kosteva said. "The coming decade will be filled with many challenges, and I want to continue being there for my district.

"I want to continue my legislative work in environmental protection," said Kosteva. "My recent work to regulate the disposal of scrap tires, which are hazardous to the environment, is my latest effort to keep Michigan environmentally sound."

In addition to the tire bill, Kosteva has sponsored laws to:

- establish the Michigan Education Trust (MET) guaranteed tuition program;
- create the Plastics Recycling Consortium to promote and develop plastics recycling industries in Michigan;
- impose a surcharge on the dumping of hazardous waste to fund environmental clean-up and encourage waste recycling; and
- increase penalties for illegal dumping of medical wastes and other illegal discharges into State waters.

Further, he developed and introduced the "Tri-Star" school finance reform, which spurred the continuing reform efforts. He introduced legislation to prevent the landfilling of compostable yard clippings. Another bill which is expected to go to the Governor extends the mandatory seatbelt use to auto passengers age four to 16 traveling in the rear seat.

Kosteva assisted local efforts to secure the new Venoy/Vining/I-94 Interchange. In just over five and a half years, he responded to over 3,000 constituent requests.

More than $1.6 million in grant money has been obtained for the following projects in the 37th District:

- Belleville Lake — French Landing Dam
- Romulus Historical Society
- Canton Township Recreation Complex
- Wayne-Westland Library
- Wayne — Palace Theater Restoration
- City Management Corporation
- Downriver Recycling
- Greater Detroit Resource Recovery Authority
- Western Townships Utility Authority
- Detroit/Wayne County Port Authority
- Canton Township — Cherry Hill School

Representative Kosteva is Chairman of the House Colleges and Universities Committee, Vice Chair of Conservation, Recreation and Environment, and Vice Chair of Taxation. He is also a member of the committees on Education, Transportation, and Urban Development; is Trustee of the State Library; and has chaired special subcommittees on solid waste recycling and rail safety, pursuing legislation concerning Community "Right to Know" affecting toxic material transportation.

House Speaker Lewis N. Dodak recently said, "When I need a House member to take on tough, important work, I can turn to Jim Kosteva. He has my complete trust and confidence, and I hold him in the highest regard."

Representative Kosteva and his wife Laura live in Canton and have two sets of twins: Jessica and Adam, three, and Sarah and Caryn, one. Grandma resides with them and provides an extra set of hands. □

Is Your Toothbrush Keeping You Sick?

With the rising cost of health care, today's seniors are more concerned than ever about the world's most frequently occurring illness — the common cold.

Some new studies at Florida Atlantic University have found that at least one virus causing the common cold thrives on toothbrush bristles, establishing a direct link between the toothbrush and lingering cold symptoms.

"Every time a person experiencing cold symptoms uses his or her toothbrush, it's very likely that that person is becoming reinfected with the illness," said Dr. Willard Charnetzky, head of the research program at FAU. "Based on these findings, bacterial growth on toothbrushes can prolong recovery of the common cold."

In the study, sterile toothbrushes were dipped in a rhinovirus suspension, a virus that causes common cold symptoms. Some of the brushes were then dipped into a sterile medium, others were left alone. Both sterile and virus-treated brushes were placed in a toothbrush sanitation unit, the Dentec 4000, to test its effectiveness in destroying the bacteria by use of ultraviolet germicidal light.

After 24 hours, the toothbrushes that were placed in the sanitation units yielded no recoverable particles. The brushes that were not sanitized yielded significant virus, almost 50% of the number determined at the beginning of the experiment.

"If not sanitized, the toothbrushes remain bacteria-ridden, and the more you brush, the greater the chance of reinfection," noted Charnetzky.

For more information about sanitation of toothbrushes and the Dentec 4000, call toll-free: (800) 942-7192.

Who Is Eligible To Receive Supplemental Security Income Benefits?

People who are age 65 or older or who are blind or severely disabled can receive Supplemental Security Income payments if they have little or no income and resources. An individual can have up to $2,000 in resources and still be eligible. For a couple, the resource limit is $3,000. Not all resources count, however. For example, the home where you live and most of your personal belongings don't count. A person usually can have up to $20 per month of any income without any reduction in the SSI payment amount. For earned income, $65 can be earned with no reduction ($85 if there is no unearned income for exclusion), and only half of the remainder counts. Income in excess of those limits reduces the SSI payment amount. If you need additional information, contact your Social Security office. □
